TEACHING FORCE MUST BE STRONGER ASSERTS EDUCATOR

Country Will Go To Dogs Under Present System, Is Belief.

"This country will go to the dogs if the teaching force is not allowed to work under better conditions," said W. E. Larson, rural school inspector, in his address at the Tuck county schools held today at the high school.
"We must get the public to appreciate that they are the ones who suffer from the teacher's poor work. A man who can send his children away to private schools. A teacher is a kind of a football. Any fool can kick the teacher. He is the chief subject for the gossip. Naturally our young people do not want to get into a profession where they are to be kicked all the time."
Larson urged higher salaries. "Get rid of the poor teachers. Pay high salaries, and $100 or $200 is not too much to pay to teachers who measure up to the mark."
"So much for the salary. Schools will have to be improved greatly before many of our young people will take up work in them. Better all of your conditions in the hopes of getting results."
Larson said that the fact that we must have material from which to pick teachers. You must have high school graduates. The problem now is to get children in rural districts to attend our high schools. Agriculture is the main industry of the country. It is in a district where there is no high school near-by. Encourage, by all means, education in the rank and file of the country people.

The value of school societies as a means of teaching children how to express themselves before a group was emphasized by Mr. Larson.
In connection with this subject he said, "This country is not any place near a democracy. What happens near a democracy is that the few rule. One can, maybe two or three, do all of the talking. They're the leaders. The rest of the people have not learned how to stand up and express themselves. The subjects. Begin with the child in the school. If we are living up to our aims as teachers we think that we are teaching all the children of all of the land. The beginning of the new day, state clinical psychologist.
Use Intelligence Tests.
"But our common school system does not take into consideration that all children are not the same. Intelligence tests were first taken in the army where they proved of such value that now in practically every branch of service intelligence tests are taken. The work in the schools of Wisconsin began two years ago.
"From the tests which were taken in the first year, of 39,126 school children, we found that one child in every 200 was feeble-minded or below average. 10 percent of these were below average mental; 51 percent were average; and 33 percent were above average, and 33 percent were below average.
"I am in testing defective children that they are always best in spelling, probably because it is a matter of fact that they do not best, and reading, third."
"Instead of trying to teach these weak children decimal fractions and parts of speech, it would be ever so much better to teach them how to get along with their fellow men, how to keep clean, how to take supervision and such manual work as they could do in making a livelihood," she said.
Dr. Woods told of many tests which are used to measure mental ability. She gave a second address in the afternoon on "The Retarded Child."

ENGLAND IS TIED UP BY NATION-WIDE RAIL STRIKE; TRAINS OFF

UNDERGROUND MOTOR MEN JOIN IN WALK-OUT; WAR REGIME IS DECLARED.

SERVICE STOPPED Buses and Trams Prove Inadequate To Care For Thousands Traveling.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London, Sept. 27.—The decision of the underground motor men's union last night to support the national railway men's strike, caused a complete stoppage of the railways here. Thousands of persons could not be accommodated by the inadequate bus and tram services, and were obliged to walk. Many resorted to bicycles and even to roller skates.
The government having failed in its negotiations with the union to adjust the situation is said to be prepared to operate the railways, with armed forces if necessary. It is believed that the situation will be a war regime so far as food and fuel is concerned, and it was stated yesterday the mails would be carried by the army. This the employees of the Irish railways had not struck.

One of the most disquieting features of the situation is the possibility that the miners and transport workers who, with the railway men, form what is known as the "triple alliance" also may strike.
Lloyd George makes statement.
The precipitancy of this action gives the impression of a deliberate and uncalculated intention on the part of the government to seek a quarrel at any cost," said Premier Lloyd George.
"It has convinced me it is not a strike for wages or better conditions, but a strike for the national union of railway men had walked out in a body and the stoppage of service was complete."
Railroad depots here were open this morning but, with the exception of a few people who were not aware of the strike, they were deserted. The big motor cars, which are driven by soldiers were carrying off perishable articles which arrived on late trains.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

The Judge Sez:

"Hello, neighbor, saw you out settin' on the porch and think I'll go over and smoke a pipeful of nigger head with you. Was just finishin' readin' the Gazette and as how the General Motors had bought in some money property again."

"Heard you come here from Michigan. What rent you payin' $40 for this joint? Mother of Moses. The guy what owns this place only paid $2100 for it four months ago. Believe me them guys whants robbin' the people for rent must care a lot what decent people think of 'em."

"If they think folks think they are good business men? Lucky they can't see into our souls and get a glimpse, what they'd see would kill 'em."

"Them are the kind of people what have kept the town where it was a year ago but thank the General Motors that a year from now they'll be like bullfrogs in the ocean, they won't see nothin' but what'll want to eat 'em."

"Count 'em by 'Noes'."

"The only time they're noticed is when the people vote on some improvement for the city. They only vote once a year, the number of 'em we've got. They're gettin' fewer though the last few months."

"Then they're the kind of people what wants everything in the world and cries half the night because folks without money are allowed to breathe the like they are."

"If they had to 'please stand aside,' but believe me no more of that stuff goes in Janesville, Wisconsin. From now on they'll get out of the way or get run over."

"My idea of wakin' up the dead ones in a town is to get 'em together with the live ones, have public meetings where the poor scrub like me dares to speak with the guy what thinks he's rich."

"I might know something what he don't know and the next day he might cash in on it. If he does he'll try agin. If he does himself some good he does the town some good, unless some body or turnin' somebody down for rentin' his house because he's got seven fine, healthy, promisin' kids."

"Doesn't like Dog Kickers."

"Them people who don't like kids are in the same class with me as them what kicks a dog out of their way. An the guy what kicks a dog isn't very spry about kickin' a guy his size if you're not a dog."

"I hope the people will always vote for a councilman because he's progressive and not because he's an awful nice man. If he votes for improvements that cost money he'll only last one term. What we want is the guy what knows that and runs things."

"Did you see the piece in the paper the other night where some guy what pays taxes kicks because his kid was sent home from school and some kid who's dad isn't lucky enough to have any taxes to pay gets his seat. He wants the General Motors to segregate the kids they bring here but you hear people what say they don't have the courage to let us know his name. We'd 'lect him mayor or Indian Ford. I bet the people what read it bawled their eyes out for him, they felt so bad."

"What tickles me is to listen to the birds what stand around and cuss themselves for not buyin' this and that and not makin' what some live guy just made. Right then they would go home and think it over because they'd give $16,000 for the Motors lot."

"Would Even Bet Cigar."

"Right now I'll bet an exceptional cigar that there are people what ain't been down to look over the Motors plant yet."

"What I'd like to see is some meetings held where everybody is invited. They can get together and rub elbows and one thing and another and Bill from the First ward can talk it over with Jim from the Fourth and the first thing you know there'll be petitions pourin' into the council to pave the streets instead of court injunctions to restrain if the council did happen to pick out their avenue."

"Well I guess I've done all the talkin' as usual and the mornin' comes pretty quick so he'll have to go. I'll be in again some night and give you a small idea of what the General Motors has done around this burg since a year ago. I hope your generous landlord don't raise the rent again now because the Motors company took on the Millmore property. Well so long and I'll be goin'."

APARTMENT HOUSES.

Many families that have come to this city within the last few weeks to make their permanent homes, either must have houses to live in or they will be compelled to go elsewhere. Some provisions possibly will be made for many of them, though they may have to be temporary. But the situation will grow more serious as the months pass unless immediate steps are taken to relieve the condition.

It is the belief of those who have made a study of such conditions in other cities that apartment houses will go a long way in solving the problem. There is little doubt but that if a modern apartment house today were ready for occupancy, it could be filled before night. This would be true, even if the rents would reach as much as $50 per month. Many men recently come to Janesville are in a position to pay that much for a modern apartment with the service that would go with it. These men by taking apartments would vacate some of the smaller and cheaper houses they are now occupying, thereby relieving the whole situation.

Considered from an investment standpoint, apartments should bring a fair return. If a group of local men would form a company to put up such a building as soon as work could be started, they would not only realize on their investments, but they would aid the city in solving the housing problem.

The General Motors corporation is going to build houses for its employees, but those who are not a part of that organization are going to be confronted with the choice of putting up with makeshifts which can be provided, or leaving the city.

This is so serious a condition that quick action should be taken by those who can relieve it.

CONTEMPTIBLE QUITTER!

The Republican Publicity association, through its president, Jonathan Bourne, Jr., gives out the following statement from its Washington headquarters:

"President Wilson's allusion to certain senators as 'contemptible quitters' because of their steadfast Americanism, makes it appropriate to call attention to fourteen points in his own quitting record:

"1. He was elected on a pledge for free tolls for American coastwise shipping through the Panama canal, but demanded repeal of the provision for reasons never disclosed.

"2. He pledged pitiless publicity regarding public affairs, but no administration ever equalled his in secrecy.

"3. He assured the country that no legitimate business would be injured, but his tariff legislation paralyzed American industry until war orders restored trade.

"4. He promised that merit rather than political service should govern federal appointments, but has consistently violated the spirit of the civil service law.

"5. He promised that the rights of American citizens would be protected at home and abroad, but three hundred Americans have been murdered in Mexico while he watchfully waited.

"6. In his first campaign, reduction of the cost of living was the paramount issue, but there has not been a day since his election that the cost of living has been as low as before.

"7. He promised that there should be no 'usurpation of governmental instrumentality by special interests,' but he cooperated with the labor union special interests which forced inequitable raising of wages through governmental instrumentality.

"8. He promised economy in governmental administration but no previous administration was so extravagant and inefficient.

"9. He was elected in a campaign in which his publicity agents assured the country of his 'approachability,' but no other president has been so secluded.

"10. He told Germany she would be held to 'strict accountability' and then entered upon a series of note-writing which won contempt.

"11. Three days after the Lusitania was sunk, he told the world America was too proud to fight.

"12. In 1916 he insisted upon maintenance of the Washington policy of non-interference in European affairs and now insists upon interference in all European affairs.

"13. He stood first for self-determination and then for the theft of Shantung.

"14. He promised 'open covenants openly arrived at' and then was party to negotiations unprecedentedly secret."

GLASS URGES PUPILS TO SAVE.

Secretary of the Treasury Carter Glass has sent out an appeal to the 20,000,000 school boys and girls of the country, urging them to continue the habit of earning and saving money and investing it in government securities. The text of the appeal is as follows:

"In addressing the twenty million or more school boys and girls of this country, I am addressing the citizenship—the business and professional men and women, the producers and consumers and the home makers of only a few years hence. The responsibility of all the problems of our country will ultimately fall upon you. The spirit of patriotism and helpfulness which you displayed during the world war has proved your fitness for your future responsibility. Your record in production of needed materials during the war, your saving of food and money, and your investment in government securities is a record of which every American citizen is justly proud.

"It is the earnest desire of your government that you should continue to practice and make permanent those same habits of industry and economy, that through your influence and example America may soon become a nation of people who always save some part of their earnings, who spend money with greatest care, and who invest what they save in some safe place.

"I am glad to see that our school boys and girls have continued during the vacation months to save their money and are buying thrift and war savings stamps, thus laying aside a portion of the money they earn for some future purpose, and while they are continuing to render some service to their government, they are at the same time providing for their own needs.

"The habit of earning and saving money is a most interesting and happy one. I am sure that this habit has become so fascinating to you that you will continue to earn and to save through all the months and years to come and keep investing what you save in government securities.

"It is my personal hope that the lessons of thrift,

"SUCH A CARE."

"They're such a care," I heard her say,
Speaking of children yesterday.
"I sometimes wonder if it pays,
If all the gladness of their ways
Is worth the pain of parting when
God calls his babies home again.
I think it better not to know
A joy that is so soon to go—
And then the risk! You cannot tell
Whether or not they'll turn out well;
With all your care, you cannot say
How far their feet shall go astray;
I fear I could not stand the shame
If flesh of mine should stain my name."

I answered: "Once your mother's prayer
Was to be given such a care.
She asked that she might know your smile,
Feel your caresses for a while,
Stand vigil by your cot at night
And give her strength for your delight;
Ventured—your days of life to buy—
The pain of parting should you die.
Nor gave one thought upon the shame
That you might place upon her name;
Where'er the risk throughout your days,
She only asked a child to raise—
She did not ask a guarantee
That you would pure and lovely be.

"Today a lonely mother weeps
Whose babe beneath the willows sleeps,
Yet gladly would she bear the pain
To know such happiness again;
She has forever as her own
The days of joy which she has known,
And always, when her heart grows sad,
She can recall the love she's had;
Here is a richer, sweeter life,
With all the pain and hurt of strife
And all its weight of grief and woe,
Than those who've had no babe to know.
Oh, make unto your God this prayer—
That she shall send you such a care."

that are being taught in your school may help you to develop in your life permanent habits of saving and thereby lay a foundation for your personal happiness and usefulness and ultimately for a bigger and better America."

The Hunters and the Game

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN, Director

Janesville Daily Gazette Information Bureau,
Washington, D. C.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 27.—About six million Americans are going hunting this fall, according to an estimate made by the American Game Protective and Propagation association.

Whether the army of American hunters is really this large is doubtful by some officials of the biological survey, but they admit that the number is several millions. This article is designed to give the hunters some facts about the game which they hunt, and to provide interesting information for all readers.

For wild fowl, according to the government naturalists, this should be an excellent year. The weather is in the Rocky Mountain states where the weather has been so dry that there are poor accommodations for wild ducks and geese. Out west, the wild fowl are dependent upon shallow ponds and sloughs formed by rain water, and in dry years they simply go elsewhere.

In the east, on the other hand, where the wild fowl inhabit great rivers and bays that are not affected by seasonal conditions, the hunting should be unusually good. Ever since the federal migratory bird law was passed, protecting the wild fowl in their spring migrations, they have been increasing steadily. In addition, this last winter was such a mild one that few birds were killed. There were several reasons for this. In the first place, they did not gather in the central Atlantic states where the hunting is done, in anything like their usual numbers, presumably because the mild winter enabled them to remain farther north. Second, the weather was so mild that the birds were not driven south by the cold. Third, the birds were not driven south by the cold. Third, the birds were not driven south by the cold.

With regard to the upland birds—the grouse and quail—reports are not nearly so encouraging. No federal law protects those birds. Their protection is purely under state law, and most of the state's protection is so inadequate that the birds are steadily decreasing. The ruffed grouse, which is found in the Adirondacks and in the hundreds of thousands of gunners from Massachusetts to Minnesota and from Virginia to the Canada line, is reported scarce almost everywhere. Likewise, and a nest of hawks have made the struggle unusually hard for the grouse the past few years, and unless carefully protected, they will soon be extinct in many places. Some of the states have recognized this fact this year by protecting the grouse for a term of years.

Good Year For Quail
For the bob white quail, which is perhaps the most popular game bird in America, this has been a fairly good year. The quail are more numerous than holding their own anywhere, and in many places are decreasing, but a mild winter like that of last year, is always a help to them. In hard winters they cannot reach their food in the northern states, and whole coveys, roosting on the ground are sometimes buried in the snow and perished by freezing.

Perhaps the game animal most widely hunted in the east is the rabbit. He is the poor man's game, in the east, although in the west he is scarcely regarded as game at all. The rabbit tends to hold his own by reason of his cautious nature and his aptitude for strategy. Like the quail, he will probably always be with us.

With regard to squirrels, there is something of a controversy afoot. Some persons claim that they destroy so much growing corn, beans, and other crops that they should be exterminated. Others contend that they should not be regarded as game at all, but should be treated as pests. William T. Hornaday, the distinguished naturalist and superintendent of the Bronx Zoo, is one of these defenders of the squirrel.

The extensive use of squirrels as park animals has caused many persons no longer to regard them as game. Here in Washington there are a few in every park, but they seem to have a rather good time making a living despite the fact that they solicit a peanut from almost every passer-by. Once some squirrel, however, turned loose a number of the animals in the grounds of the Smithsonian Institution, but they did not thrive there. For one thing, there was no water, and it was found necessary to water the squirrels with buckets every day. Then it was found that the small boys were trapping them and selling them alive to a certain animal store. In fact this

HEAD-HUNTERS

The head-hunters of Borneo are a good example of the fact that morals are nothing but customs, and that anything may become moral under certain circumstances.

The nature and rank of a head-hunter as a terrible sort of savage. As a matter of fact, the head-hunters are good savages. They are kindly and reliable, they do not cheat or lie, and they have much artistic ability and good taste. They hunt heads because it is a part of their religion to do so. When a chief dies, every good Borneo feels that it is up to him to go forth and kill four or five men, just as a good citizen in this country feels that it is up to him to go forth and kill in case the government decides to have war.

The Borneo head-hunter is not excessive or brutal about his head-hunting. He takes only a few heads at a time, and these he treats with the utmost consideration. He drills a little hole in the skull of each one and neatly removes the brains. The hair he takes off and makes into artistic decorations for his shield. The head of the head is dried before a great fire, the eyes often being treated with resin to preserve their lifelike appearance. Afterward the native hangs this head in his house and treats it with great reverence. He apologizes to it for having taken its owner's life, and he feeds it rice through the hole which he has bored in its skull. He believes that in a future life, the owner of this head will be his servant.

Thus it is seen that the head-hunter does not cut off heads in a rash or ruthless spirit. He honestly believes that he is solving the servant problem for a distant posterity.

DIES WITH HUSBAND
St. Ives, Cornwall.—A woman's dying thought of her husband, a blinded and paralyzed ex-soldier, resulted in her losing her life here. The victim, named Pollard, lived in a cottage near the shore. When the wife returned from a visit to her mother, she found a lamp overturned and the kitchen in flames. She rushed upstairs through dense smoke and dragged her husband to the door. Before a ladder could be brought both were overcome. The bodies were found with the wife clasping her husband as though to shield him from harm.

A DANCING PRODIGY
London.—That he is the greatest dancer in Britain, in spite of his fifteen years, is the general opinion of experts and critics regarding Errol Addison, who was especially engaged as principal dancer for the Royal Opera House, Covent Garden. Errol started dancing when four years old and won his first prize when five, and afterward studied for the stage. He can dance three feet in the air and land on the stage as lightly as a shuttlecock.

LONDON NOW BOASTS OF REGULAR QUARTER LATIN
London.—Baron Edmond de Rothschild has placed a house in London at the disposal of the Academie des Beaux Arts. It is to be used as a hostel for artists as well as for young people engaged in literary and scientific work generally—a new miniature Quarter Latin. At this hostel young people will be relieved of the art of living and will be able to devote themselves to work and study.

Local papers including the West-Minster Gazette, suggest that some-what Englishman should represent the city by establishing a similar idea in Paris, "and the two ideas might be run with common ideas and principles."

Its Better to Wear Two Trouser Legs Than Just One, She Believes

NEW YORK—There has come to this city a woman individualist—a woman from Mexico and environs, who believes in trousers (although she doesn't call them by that name) for the female of the species, and who has the courage of her convictions. The woman made her first appearance on the streets a few days ago. In a short stroll down Fifth avenue, between 4 and 5 o'clock, in a costume of white serge trousers—or Harleys, as the originator prefers them called—and a cross between a waist and jacket of the same material, trimmed profusely with cerise buttons and ribbons, the woman from Mexico succeeded in creating considerable attention.

"Something for the moving pictures," was the usual verdict. Loose clothes, they said. Miss Harley was not posing for the movies, neither is she seeking a theatrical engagement, she told reporters. She has no other just such creations, designed and made by herself, since 1914, when she was doing research work in Mexico, and found the trousers more comfortable than skirts.

"I approve of trousers for women," she said. "I contend that women are hampered by the swaddling clothes they wear, and they spend entirely too much time and thought on their clothes. If they were loose and comfortable things their brains would function more freely, and women would be more of value to the world."

All of Miss Harley's costumes—she has 12 combinations with her—are loose over the hips. She does not wear corsets nor high heels. Her evening costumes are made of exquisite materials, elaborately trimmed with pearls, laces and heavy embroideries, but all are made on the same lines the trousers and the upper part.

All of woman's savage instincts for adornment should be saved for the evening, when she is 100 percent woman," she said.

Miss Harley has to make all of her own things, because every dressmaker and tailor she seeks thinks her a joke, and will not make the garments properly.

If Fifth avenue felt amused at and critical of Miss Harley's costume, she felt a reciprocal scorn for the skirts of Mrs. Manhattan and her daughters.

"They are wearing one trouser leg, while I wear two," she commented. She is used to being stared at, having come from California on a lecture trip.

"Undies" are of conventional satins and crepe de chine, in one piece combinations.

"I have nothing tight over the hips," she said, "nor do I mutilate my body in any way with cramped

"NO WOMAN BUT ME?" "SURE"—BUT HE LIED

Billie Billings' fiancé loved her so much that the services of a policeman were required to prevent that unflattering but unloved editor from "case-harassing" her to his abode, in "A Temperamental Wife," starring Constance Talmadge and which will be seen beginning Monday at the Apollo Theater.

Miss Talmadge plays the role of the very jealous-natured Miss Billings who deteriorates into her husband must be a man who has never been interested in women and who, after marriage, will be interested in no woman other than herself.

She finds such a man in the person of Senator Newton, suffering from an ailment as torpid liver, indigestion and flat feet. But they are married, and the Senator proves to be a model husband until Billie runs off with a Bulgarian Count. How Billie tries to regain the confidence of her important husband makes a very interesting and pleasing story.

THE SUNKEN NASAL BRIDGE
In a recent contribution on the subject of rhinoplasty (surgery of the nose) I described the interesting case of a woman who had a perforation of the palate and a sunken nasal bridge, the result of a destructive disease involving the bones of the nose in early life. The woman wore a dental plate which covered the perforation and so enabled her to speak well without the plate she could not speak well.

She first sought relief for her poor vision, which was also due to the destructive effect of the disease in early life. But because of her lack of nasal bridge, she could not wear glasses, and the mechanical genius of the oculist failed to overcome the difficulty. The Wasserman test being positive, the woman was treated for two years for syphilis. At the end of that time her condition seemed to warrant surgical procedure.

Two and one-half inches of bone was taken from her shin, and a pocket in the left vestibule under the skin, the pocket extending well up to the frontal bone, and the skin over the upper part of the nose well loosened, so that the implant could be inserted and placed with its upper end in contact with the scarified frontal bone.

The lower end of the bone implant reached nearly to the tip of the nose, which was bent over to the right to permit insertion of the implant. The wound was then closed over the implant, the new bridge supported with a copper saddle applied externally, and a rapid and firm healing took place.

This woman had no nose for years—that is, there was merely a rounded tip and two nostrils, the entire bridge being sunken below the line of the remnants of the nasal bones. The result was a very satisfactory nose. Of course not equal to a good job by the Creator, but infinitely superior to the bungling job that had been done by that highly commended

FASHION SAYS. "FEATHERS DOWN!"

AND so the designer has taken a long copper colored pheasant tail and wound it around this small, fan-shaped hat, or clipped it to midday's waist. And even though it is a bit unusual it is "so chic, my dear."

There is a curious tendency shown by several of the best turban to their trimming droop downward instead of mounting upward. One of the extremely successful theatre turbans, made of black tulle, is wrapped about the head in the ancient way and has a thick padding that falls down over the cheekbones and curls under the chin. This is worn with a black tulle gown which has shoulder straps of jet.

This turban for street wear was probably inspired by the new ones which are appearing at evening functions. This downward trend of feather trimming may not always be becoming to all types, but it is something new and must be considered in the fall fashion review.

The woman who specializes in a babyish manner. From the plaintiff baby manner and intonation to the whine is only a very thin step. I know a quite young woman who married a man some ten years older than herself, whom she attracted partly by her babyish manner. She is in danger now of repelling him by that same manner—which has deteriorated into something very close to a whine.

When one speaks of a whine one means primarily a tone of voice, but one can whine in other ways than with the voice. For instance, there are some people who married by hate to open because I knew they will contain a whine.

The Whine is the Language of Of course, most people who whine have troubles to whine about, but that isn't why they whine. Many people who whine are happy. They never whine at all, it is because they have let themselves get into the habit of self-pity. The whine is the language of self-pity.

How men have ever had more terrible troubles to face than Henry. And instead of pitying himself and letting the self-pity get into his head, he wrote the finest anti-whine document ever written. You know what it is, but I'm going to repeat two verses for you just you may not have it at the tip of your tongue.

In the strong stress of circumstance I have not whined or cried aloud. Under the bludgeonings of change My head is bloody but unbowed. It matters not how straight the gate: I am the master of my fate—I am the captain of my soul.

Heart and Home Problems

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am 16 years old and am worried about the way my father and brothers are treating me. They won't let me have any girl or boy friends. When they come they insult them and then scold me for not having any friends. My mother is not so bad, but she always scolds me.

I am still going to school and work Saturdays. When I work they want me to quit school and work all the time.

My cousin lived with us and my parents wouldn't let her have friends when she was 20 and she left home. Would you advise me to quit school and go to my aunt's and stay there?

SWEET SIXTEEN.
Got some education even if you have to endure a great deal of suffering at home. If you were to quit school and go to work, you would earn a little that after paying your board you would have nothing left to spend. If you educate yourself, in a few years you will be ready for a much better position and can make considerably more money. You are just a little girl and for many years longer ought to be willing to work and study for the sake of your future.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: We are two girls 12 and 13 years of age. (1) We have never gone with fellows, but now two fellows have asked to come to see what we are around? (2) What should we say when we ask them to come to see us? (3) If they do not take us anywhere how should we entertain them? (4) How late should we stay out with them? (5) Follow your impulse and act as new ones. The treatment not only saves the price of new ones, but if done every year will often save the price of the canned food, as the lids are thoroughly sterilized in the process, and there is no danger of their spoiling the contents of the jars.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Would it be proper for a young man to invite his lady friend and another couple to spend an evening at his home while his folks are away?

It would not be all right unless properly chaperoned.

She Married an Average Man

By ZOE BECKLEY.

The idea of a bride having the blues. For three days I've been moping in the house or splashing about the wet, windy road, battling with little blue devils.

It started the night I didn't get home in time to fix dinner and found Jim already there with that man Belton. He'd been out from the office with that woman from New York I met at Mrs. Wyeth's and her horrid son flitting with me, and the idea both the and Mrs. Belton gave me about New York—New York that I've always dreamed of and idealized as the place of all places to live a full, useful, happy life. I got into a regular fit of the blues.

"Well, what do you think of Belton?" Jim asked briskly next morning. "For answer I sort of puckered up my face and said nothing."

"You mean you don't like him?" Jim turned to me with his hair half-brushed and looking up. "I like you better," I answered facetiously, kissing him on the ear.

"But Ann, he's a splendid fellow. All right, don't let's let a splendid fellow. I agreed, hurrying on my morning frock and bustling into the kitchen.

"I hoped Jim wouldn't pursue the subject, but of course he did. "Why don't you like Charlie Belton, Ann?" he persisted at the breakfast table.

"It's a type I don't understand, Jim, that's all. I suppose he's what people call a 'Broadway type.' I didn't wish to tell him that every time Belton got a chance he said or did some little thing, trifling in itself, but illuminating to a woman's sensitive instinct. It felt bad to describe in a single phrase I'd say 'not straight-forward.'"

"You certainly have the gift of imagination, Ann—if it's you've anything definite against Charlie. You'd be doing all hands a service in shoot it over. I may look in with him on a business proposition."

SIDE TALKS

ON THE GROWN-UP WHINER.
Some days ago I had a few words say about the child who whines. Consider friend most kindly and proper those few words, but goes on to say, in effect: "How much better it would have been had there been more of it."

"Not shouldn't have stopped with the child who whines," he says (you see I do have some "he's" among my readers). "You should ever permit yourself into the grown-up who whines. A little worse than the Child Who Whines."

Truly, that was an error of omission, for the one housemate harder to bear than the sixth-year-old whiner is the grown-up whiner. Nothing darkens the day any more than a person who whines about his troubles. A growler isn't pleasant to have around, but I think I like a growler better than a whiner. Men especially despise whiners, and to give the male his due, they don't whine so much as women. It is more a feminine than a masculine fault (I rather think a growl is the masculine of a whine). No woman who wants to keep her husband's respect, he would ever permit herself even a suspicion of the whine habit. It doesn't matter how much she has to whine about. That won't excuse her in his eyes, or make her whining lovable.

Not far from the plaintive to the whining. Whining. By the way, here is a warning for the woman who specializes in a babyish manner. From the plaintiff baby manner and intonation to the whine is only a very thin step. COBB TAKES HITTING HONORS FOR TWELFTH TIME IN 13 YEARS

[By Associated Press.]
Chicago, Sept. 27.—Babe Ruth's close rival Ty Cobb, of the Detroit Tigers, took the hitting honors for the twelfth time in 13 years. Cobb, according to unofficial figures, is leading the race with a mark of .375, 29 points ahead of Veach, his team-mate and batting rival.

The figures include games of Wednesday. The noted Georgian's official mark will not be determined until the final averages are completed. Cobb's record in the batting championship during his major league career was in 1916, when he averaged .367.

"Babe" Ruth, the home run marvel, is in seventh place in the list of batting leaders with an average of .323. Ruth's achievement of driving out 28 homers for a world's record, leads the league in extra base hits, having secured 138. Besides his circuit drives, Ruth has 54 doubles, and has even dozen of triples to his credit. He also leads in scoring, having counted 102 runs.

Eddie Collins, the Chicago second baseman, is topping the list of slugging men with 52, with George Slaughter, of the St. Louis Cardinals, next with 28. Cobb and Rice of Washington are trailing in third place with 27 each.

Other leading American league batters for sixty games: Jackson, 34; Siler, St. Louis, 34; Tobin, St. Louis, 32; Heilmann, Detroit, 32; Ruth, Boston, 32; Jacobson, St. Louis, 32; Flanagan, Detroit, 32; Rice, Washington, 31; Collins, Chicago, 31; Peckinpaugh, New York, 31.

Cravath Wins in N. L.
"Cravath" Cravath, manager of the Philadelphia club, probably will win the National league batting title by a margin of a few points, although the race is close. The averages show Cravath in the lead with .335, with Jim Thorpe of Boston five points behind him. Eddie Roush, star outfielder with Cincinnati, is third with .322.

Burns of New York, who crowded Heinie Groh, the Cincinnati third baseman, out of the commanding position in scoring, managed to edge to his lead of one run. Burns has registered 21 scores. Zack Wheat, the Brooklyn veteran, and Roush, are fighting it out for home runs. Roush has a total of 21, while Wheat's mark is 21.

CINCINNATI PARK WILL SEAT 33,000 FANS DURING SERIES

[By Associated Press.]
Cincinnati, Sept. 27.—The home grounds of the Cincinnati Nationals, winners of the National league pennant, which is known as Redland field, will seat approximately 27,000 persons, and accommodate about 33,000 when the local team plays the Chicago White Sox, winners of the American league race for world's series championship honors.

The permanent stands seat 22,000, but by the time the first game of the world's series is begun, new seats for 5,000 more persons will have been erected. In addition, fans who are not fortunate enough to obtain coupon tickets for seats will find space for about 8,000 persons.

Early in August, when Cincinnati played the New York Giants in what was considered by many baseball followers as the crucial game in the pennant race, slightly more than 31,000 persons were on the ball grounds. From this it can be seen that there will be no difficulty for at least 33,000 finding vantage places to view the games.

Redland field is located on the west end of the sidewalk on Western avenue and along York street, and the new box seats are along the first and third base lines. The Cincinnati city council, elected over the Reds winning the pennant, gave the club management permission to alter the stadium, and the new stands of Western avenue and York street, closing the latter street to traffic for 40 days.

The playing field will be encroached on to the extent of possibly 18 feet, and about the same distance behind the catcher's position and along the first and third base lines. This will contract the playing field somewhat, but it will be possible to drive out legitimate three-baggers in left field and home runs in right.

Redland field is considered the last word in baseball parks. It is situated at Western and York streets, and the permanent stands are of concrete and steel and the property is owned by the Cincinnati city council.

The building of the structure was started in September, 1911, and completed in April, 1912, the total cost running at $300,000.

The grandstand proper has a double deck, and on its left and right are single stands with roofs over them. The right side of each stand, as the bleachers, have no roof shelter.

Hippo Vaughn Will Pitch for Kenosha Nine

Kenosha, Sept. 27.—Jim "Hippo" Vaughn, crack left-handed hurler of the Chicago Cubs, has signed to pitch for the Nash Motors team of this city for the balance of the season.

Vaughn will work at the Nash Motor company factory during the winter months. His home is situated here. Vaughn will join the Nash team after next Sunday's game, according to an announcement made by Willis Cole, manager of the Nash team.

"Red" Torkelson, Cleveland pitcher, bought from the New Orleans club of the Southern association, is also a member of the Nash team. Torkelson, former Minneapolis outfielder and captain of the Racine Shore league team earlier this season, has forsaken the team and has come to play center field for the Motors.

BRINGING UP FATHER

STAGE SET FOR BIG ALBANY GAME HERE

With clear weather predicted and fans anxious, everything is set for the Janesville-Albany battle at the fair grounds tomorrow afternoon. The game is expected to draw a large crowd, and the Janesville team is expected to be on duty when the game starts. Manager Ray Crooke of the Albany outfit announces that Dave Black, one of the best known pitchers in Chicago, will leave with Tommie Crooke to do the pitching. Eddie Brodie will pitch for the home club, with Silverthorn, Peotville, White Sox star, behind the plate. A pitcher's duel is the prediction of those who have seen the two hurlers in action.

Ben Blake, an old American association umpire, now employed at the Samson Tractor plant, has been secured to officiate.

Instead of Oak Henning, Manager Murphy announces that he will have Pat Newman covering the initial sack tomorrow. Newman is a Northern player of regular fielding ability and a heavy striker. The remainder of the line-up will be: Miller, ss; Aaron, 2b; Clegg, 3b; Keith, 1b; Biglow, cf; Conroy, rf.

TOMMY MURPHY HAS BIG DAY AT COLUMBUS

Columbus, Sept. 27.—Tommy Murphy, who has led all drivers for winning races in the present grand circuit meeting, had another big afternoon on Friday when he won two of the four races on the program.

Direct C. Burnett mastered a field of fast pacers in the Arch City 2:10 stake, winning in three evenly matched miles. Baroness Edgewood was expected to show good form, but she finished outside the money. Goldie Todd was lame and in the third heat was so badly out of form that she was distanced.

Dr. Dick won his third race of the meeting when he kept him ahead of Baroness Edgewood almost an equal favorite in the betting.

In the second division of the 2:08 pace Acquilla Dillon, a western gelding, was the best of the set and in the second heat he entered the list of new 2:05 pacers by stepping a mile in 2:04 1/2. At large field scores in the 2:15 pace, which was won by Royal Earl after he had dropped the first heat to Cherry Hills.

The meeting will be concluded on Saturday with a short program of three races, the 2:18 trot, the 2:11 trot, and the 2:13 trot.

WOMAN LANDS HUGE MARLIN SWORDFISH AFTER FIGHT LASTING OVER TWO HOURS

Mrs. Marshall Field of Chicago, unaided recently caught a 225 pound marlin swordfish after two hours and twenty-five minutes of work during which she was towed from Seal rocks into Avalon bay, Catalina island. She says of her feat:

"The really thrilling part of the experience was sailing the magnificent fish the big fish made. He made fifteen distinct runs, each time taking all the line. The last time it seemed as if he were making a straight dash for home, towing us nearly all the way into Avalon bay. That was a unique ride."

Mr. Field and Capt. Barney Halstead were with Mrs. Field at the time.

FOOTBALL SEASON OPENS IN EAST TODAY

New York, Sept. 27.—With the baseball season on the wane, intercollegiate football made its initial bow this morning on pre-war basis on nearly 30 gridiron throughout the country. This season marks the 50th anniversary of the game in America.

Harvard, Pennsylvania, Dartmouth, Brown and Army were among the better known eleven in the east starting today while Yale, Cornell and the remainder of the eastern colleges will inaugurate their season next week.

From all the training camps has come word that interest in the autumnal sport is greater than ever before. The squads of players are larger than in pre-war days and apparently the material is fully up to the standard. At many colleges, particularly at Yale, Harvard, Cornell and Princeton new coaching staffs are in charge.

Among the more important games on today's schedule are Harvard vs. Bates at Cambridge, Pennsylvania vs. Bucknell at Pennsylvania, Dartmouth vs. Springfield, at Hanover, Army vs. Middlebury, at West Point, Brown vs. Rhode Island state at Providence.

Eddie Collins Is Ready for Sixth World's Series Divvy

Chicago, Sept. 27.—Edward Trowbridge Collins stands on the threshold of his sixth world's series.

The flashy little White Sox second sacker, in addition to enjoying the distinction of being classed as the greatest player of all time in his position, also tops the list with Jack Barry as a veteran world's series performer.

For fourteen years this phenomenal player has been a consistent star in the major leagues. For ten of the fourteen years he has been the ball cow of all second basemen, and during those years, including 1919, he has amassed a record for brilliancy and consistency that will probably never be equaled.

Collins has made a young fortune out of world's series alone. He has cut the melon in the big October classic five times, starting with the season of 1910, when he starred as a member of Connie Mack's famous Athletics.

In 1911, 1912 and 1914, Collins covered 10th world's series, winning the American league pennant and when the White Sox annexed the American league pennant and followed by winning the world's title from the Giants in 1917, Eddie was in on the winner's end of the purse.

Out of the five world's series in which he has taken part he has won a number of the winners of the world's championship four times. In 1914 he split the losers' end of the loot when the Braves crushed the Mackmen in four straight games.

World's series playing has netted Collins about $15,000, and with the series against the Cincinnati Reds to come he will add to his grand total. A player of sound habits, the White Sox star ranks today as one of the wealthiest players in the game.

Collins is by no means a youngster. On May 2 he was thirty-two, having been born at Millerton, N. Y., in 1887. But he is showing no sign of falling. Over 150 or 160 games, as the case may be, he is a wonderful performer, day in and day out. But put him in a world's series and he is a different animal. He shows his fielding, hitting, base-running and thinking in the cash class as are almost uncanny. He is one of the greatest money players that ever lived.

No player in the history of modern world's series has a record as brilliant as Collins. Many of the stars of former series amassed batting averages better than .300. A few hit 400 or over, but only once. Collins has hit as low as .214, his mark against the pitching of the Boston Braves' fingers in 1914, but he has hit better than 400 on three different occasions.

There is but one player who has split more world's series pots than Collins. He is Jack Barry, who played in four series with the Athletics and one with the Red Sox in 1915. Barry was injured and kept out of the series with Brooklyn in 1916, but shared in the purse. Collins will equal Barry's record in the matter of splitting purses this fall.

SPORT SNAP-SHOTS

One of the most amusing things in the little world of sport, to my mind, is the way the New York sport writers constantly vent their ill feeling toward Johnny Kilbane. The matter has been discussed in this column before. The following extract from a story written by one of the Gotham scribes after the recent bout between Kilbane and Frankie Burns is really funny. As all of the wire services reported, Kilbane showed Burns the difference between an ordinary boxer and a king. To end matters Kilbane picked the right spot on Frankie's jaw in the fifth round and then rocked him to sleep.

Let us to the warble of the scribe: "The title aspirations of Frankie Burns were shattered by Champion Johnny Kilbane at the Jersey City baseball park last night, when in the fifth round of their scheduled eight-round encounter Kilbane landed what was practically the only clean blow delivered during the fray. It was a wicked right that struck the challenger for the featherweight title on his jaw just before the left ear, and for the first time in his long career the Jersey City idol was knocked out. The blow was delivered while the boxers were in Burns' corner, and the round was only one minute and 40 seconds old when the challenger toppled to the canvas. Referee Harry Erbe started to count him out as the featherweight champion gazed on in surprise. Erbe tolled off the seconds slowly, and at the count of nine the veteran gladiator struggled to his feet in a dazed condition. Kilbane stepped near him and holding his opponent the pair moved toward the center of the ring.

When the fifth round opened the champion walked quickly over to his opponent's corner and Burns made an attempt to back him toward the center of the ring. Burns' head was unprotected and the champion delivered a short, wicked right hand blow that landed on his opponent's jaw.

"Anyone who knows Kilbane knows that he seldom delivers an accidental knockout. A knockout with him is the culmination of a set program. He maps out his campaign, picks his time and then the spot. The fact that Kilbane bears no broken hands or split knuckles indicates that he has not thrown a million haymakers to the winds to land one or two—the way most fighters do."
